Master’s Degree in Landscape Design

How To Apply

Applicants for the graduate certificate in Landscape Design or graduate certificate in Sustainable Landscapes may also apply for the master's degree in Landscape Design. This is easily accomplished, with no additional application fee, by submitting a separate application.

Instructions for Completing the Additional Application

After you have been admitted to the graduate certificate in Landscape Design or graduate certificate in Sustainable Landscapes and registered for classes, follow these steps to also apply for the master's degree in Landscape Design.

- Create a new account at https://app.applyyourself.com/AYApplicantLogin/ApplicantConnectLogin.asp?id=GWUGRAD and log into the online application with your new User Name and password.

- Complete the online application form. In the education section, please include The George Washington University as one of your "previous schools attended." Select the appropriate degree and field of study and enter values of all other required fields.

- Submit an updated resume and a new statement of purpose, which will probably be very much like the one you submitted to your former application.

- Submit 2 professional or academic letters of recommendations, preferably one from a current supervisor (not applicable to students who already are accepted to the Sustainable Landscapes graduate certificate program).

- Do not resubmit transcripts, or any other documentation, unless you have to submit updated ones.

- For students who already are accepted to the Sustainable Landscapes graduate certificate program, provide the names of your recommenders from the previous online application, if required, and when asked if the letters of recommendation will be submitted online, select the "No" option.

- The application fee is waived for current degree students, so indicate "check" when asked for payment.
